Nasal Polyp.

Recently I told you about enlarged tonsils and adenoids. It was pointed out that these conditions are a common cause of mouth breathing. Today I want to tell you about another condition that is characterized by mouth breathing. The affliction I refer to is nasal polyp.

A nasal polyp, or polypus, is a small tumor located in the nasal chamber. It may be on one side, or polyps may be found on both sides of the nose. In fact the nasal passages may be entirely obstructed by nasal polyps.

This growth usually develops from the middle bony portion of the nose. Although it progresses slowly, over a period of many years, practically it may become so large as completely to obstruct the nasal passage. Because of its slow growth and development, the sufferer from this condition is likely to neglect it.

Those who develop polyps suffer from some chronic inflammation of the lining of the nose. Almost invariably they have chronic nasal catarrh. Such persons are extremely susceptible to colds, sore throats and infections of the upper air passages.

One of the most common signs of the nasal polyp is a gradual destruction of the sense of smell. Almost every victim of nasal polyp suffers from a loss of this sense. He can rarely enjoy the fragrance of flowers or other tempting aromas.

In spite of these signs, persons so afflicted rarely consult with a doctor until many years after the damage has been done. This is unfortunate, because if too much time passes it is difficult to restore the smelling function even after the polyp has been removed. On the other hand, early removal completely restores the sense of smell. Also it often relieves the catarrh, congestion, and other disagreeable discomforts that have accompanied the trouble.

The only cure for this condition is by an operation. There is no salve or other medicine that will cure nasal polyp. Do not neglect the operation for it is a simple one and need cause no anxiety. It is performed under local anesthesia, so that no pain at the time or later discomfort is experienced.

Within a few weeks the patient forgets he has been a victim of this annoying condition. In fact, persons who have had this operation are astonished at the complete change in general health after the polyp has been removed. Not only is there a marked improvement in general health, but the appetite is improved and there is no longer that marked susceptibility to colds and sore throats so commonly experienced before the operation.

Federal Intervention in Strikes Gives Wall Street Slight Lift.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 18—Intervention of the government in the steel strike inspired further selective recoveries in today's stock market, but cagey traders were not averse to cashing in some of their profits on yesterday's rally.

In much slower dealings utilities pushed upward, along with several oils, rails and specialties. Steels, motors and coppers inclined to hang back, although they improved near the fourth hour.

Bonds, on the whole, did better, especially secondary rails. Wheat dipped and other commodities were uneven.

The share list got off to a fairly good start, retreated later and then improved under leadership of the power and light group.

Somewhat difficult going was encountered by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Woolworth, American Telephone, du Pont, Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro De Pasco.

Thinness of the market was exemplified by a delayed opening in Chrysler. A bid of 99 against an offer of 102 was finally printed on the ticker tape. The first sale was 4,000 shares at 100¼, a decline of 2. It subsequently dropped under par but came back.

Issues of Certain-Teed Products weakened when the company omitted the dividend on the 6 per cent preferred. Officials explained that while earnings were more than necessary for divided requirements, it was advisable to conserve cash at this time for business expansion.

Wall Street seemed to feel a trifle better over the appointment of a federal mediation board in the steel controversy.

LATE RALLIES TRIM WHEAT PRICE SLUMP

Upturn Based on Reports Canadian Crop Will Be Only Moderate at Best.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 18—Late rallies of Chicago wheat futures today failed to overcome entirely preceding sharp setbacks.

The rallies were based largely on authoritative reports that even under the most favorable weather conditions Canada this season can harvest only a moderate wheat crop. At the close, wheat was 1¾@1¾ under yesterday's finish, July 108¾@¾, Sept. 108¾@¾, corn ¾@1¾ advanced, July 1.14@1.14¾ and oats were unchanged.

WORKED ON CITY'S FIRST DAILY; STILL PRINTER

cools and hardens swiftly. The metal now bears on the outer surface of its cylinder-like shape the imprint of the page of type and is trimmed down by electric cutters and slipped over one of the press rolls. One of these is made for each page, inserted in the presses, and the paper threaded through the press rolls.

An electric switch is turned and the newspapers, neatly folded, pour out.

Some papers here used gasoline engines or steam power for their presses after hand power became obsolete, Mr. Smith said.

Never Operated Linotype

Despite his long experience in printing and with type, Mr. Smith has never operated a linotype machine — the machines which, as their name indicate, mould single lines of type in a single piece, emitting one after another until the story is complete. They are operated much as a typewriter, the operator pressing on a lettered key which causes an imprint to be made in a molten metal alloy which hardens instantly into a thin strip.

The first linotypes were invented 51 years ago by Ottmar Mergenthaler and have virtually revolutionized the printing industry. Without them it would require an army of competent hand type setters to put out a single issue of The Star today, Mr. Smith said.

The nature of the printers has also changed considerably, he said. In former years, there were many itinerant printers who traveled from town to town and fully deserved their name of "tramp printers," Mr. Smith said. They were usually rather rugged characters with a broad-minded outlook on life.

The methods of news gathering 50 and 60 years ago would hardly be recognized today. Few small papers had reporters, and if anything important happened usually the editor himself went out to get the story. Most likely, though, he stayed in the office and let the news come to him, Mr. Smith said.

Headlines screaming across the top of page one were a rarity and were used only in the most important stories. News from outside of Marion was hard to get and was late in arriving. No paper had a telegraph wire until The Star leased one during the Spanish-American war.

Worked With Harding

Among Mr. Smith's favorite recollections are those of Warren G. Harding with whom he worked on The Star.

"He was a fine man and a great editor," Mr. Smith said. "He came out into the composing room many a time to help us out when we were rushed. I always thought very highly of him and I think he liked me."

Mr. Smith worked for The Star, a few months after it was changed from The Pebble by Sam Hume and moved to the third floor of the Fahey bank, and later worked for it when Mr. Harding owned it on East Center street where the water company office is now located.

Harding and Mrs. Harding, called "Florence" by all the workers, were not particularly affluent in those days, Mr. Smith remembers.

"Each pay day Mr. Harding would line all the fellows up in a hallway leading past his cage and one by one would pay us off in cash. He would check off each name as he paid and when he came to the last one would slam the account book shut and say, 'All paid in and all paid out.'"

The people of Marion seemed to like Harding instinctively when he started operating The Star and the paper rapidly progressed, Mr. Smith said.

Mrs. Harding, who worked about the office considerably, watched the expenses with sharp eyes, according to Mr. Smith. One of her ways of keeping down bills was to turn down the gas lights frequently during the day.

Worked at Huber

After leaving The Pebble, Mr. Smith abandoned his trade to work at the Huber Manufacturing Co., then located between State and Main streets in the area bounded by the railroads. Among the most popular products of the company then were hay racks and road scrapers of which thousands were shipped annually, Mr. Smith said.

After leaving the Huber company, he returned to printing at the old Star plant. He left there after a short time to work on The Mirror, a Democratic paper, then probably the leading one in the city. The Mirror was edited by James Newcomer, now dead, and was published first on North Main street and later on East Center street. George B. Christian Sr., James H. Vaughan, Ned Thatcher and his father were later editors of The Mirror.

In 1880, Mr. Smith joined The Marion Independent, which hailed its name by its strong Republican tendencies. It was published on the second floor of the Campbell building where the National City Bank & Trust Co. is now located. George Crawford, later a Toledo newspaperman, and Samuel R. Dumble, grandfather of Wilson Dumble, were editors. Later editors before the demise of The Independent were George Knapp and H. R. Stone. The paper was changed to The Transcript.

Did Quarry Work

After eight years on The Independent Mr. Smith in 1890 again left the printing trade for a few years to work as a stripper at the stone quarries north of Marion.

"I worked there until I nearly killed myself and then went to work for my brother-in-law, C. C. Campbell, on his farm next to Crystal lake."

About 1893 Mr. Smith and Sheridan Koons formed in partnership the job printing company of Koons & Smith and established offices above 123 North Main street.

"We would have stayed there longer if our landlord hadn't been so peculiar," he said. "We always had a nice little bank account, but this man was a big fellow and had the habit of coming around on the first day of every month and asking for his rent. Well, one time he became a little too anxious so we paid him and the next day moved our shop above the Marion County bank."

While in the job printing business, Mr. Smith learned how to make rubber stamps with a special vulcanizing outfit and later went into this business for himself after he and Koons dissolved their partnership. Koons later went to the government printing offices and is now retired. He usually comes each year to see his former partner.

Mr. Smith went back to the Huber company for a few months after leaving job printing, but soon his urge to print began to get the best of him and he began to make his rubber stamps in the evening and on Sundays and soon had developed a profitable business on the side.

"It finally came down to where I either had to quit making stamps or quit the Huber. I talked it over with my wife and decided to quit the Huber, I made stamps at home for a while, then moved into rooms above 122 South Main street and remained there for six or seven years until 1911 or 1912."

Back to The Star

An amusing change of fortunes, involving Ed Sharpless, who at that time was a world famous ventriloquist, was then the lot of Mr. Smith. A companion of Sharpless, Smith decided to accept his friend's offer to go to Australia on a vaudeville tour as a property man.

"I liked the idea so I sold my stamp business and prepared to go with Sharpless. About that time along came a war scare in Europe and Sharpless gave up his tour. That left me without a job and without my business."

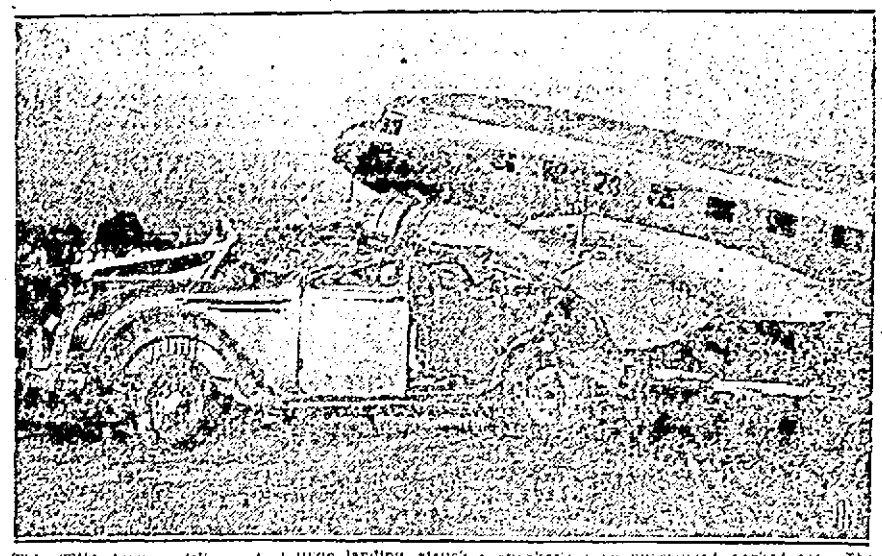
The unfortunate idleness didn't last long, for Sharpless and two other Marion men opened up the Marion theater and gave Mr. Smith a job as ticket taker. That job, incidentally, led to his present job on The Star.

"I was taking tickets one night when Billy Bull (William Bull of 255 South High street), a printer on The Star, came in to see a show and I asked him what the chances were of getting a job there. He said he'd keep me in mind, but soon after that I went to work at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. as a keeper in the tracing vault."

He worked there two months when Mr. Bull notified him that a job was open on The Star. That was in 1917 and he has been with the paper ever since.

Mr. and Smith are the parents of seven children.

A FREAK CRASH—BUT NO ONE WAS INJURED



This TWA luxury airliner is shown at the Allegheny County Airport, Pittsburgh, Pa., after an unusual accident. The ship's wing, upon landing, struck a speaker's stand erected near the administration building of the airport. The tail-wheel of the plane collapsed and caused it to swirl into an unoccupied, parked car. The fifteen passengers in the plane were slightly shaken up, but continued their flight in another airliner.

ENGINEER'S IDEA

The first suggestion that a college of law be established in the Ohio State university came not from a lawyer but from a mining engineer, Prof. Frederick W. Sperr, a member of the class of 1873.

Professor Sperr was first interested in getting the university placed on a regular levy. This done, Sperr renewed his work toward establishment of a law school.

When the trustees hesitated to appropriating a definite sum for the expenses, Columbus attorneys did the teaching and took fee receipts for their compensation.

RISING RELIEF COST INDICATED

County Director F. S. Burns Estimates $10,000 a Month Needed for Six Months.

County Relief Director Frank S. Burns today estimated it will require $10,000 a month for the last half of this year for direct relief as a result of normal loss of seasonal employment and the current 30 per cent reduction in WPA rolls.

He said he is prepared to submit such a budget to the state legislature when it convenes shortly if he is requested to do so.

His statement followed news reports from Columbus of a meeting of municipalities of 5,000 population or more to be held there Tuesday in an effort to obtain a statewide estimate of relief needs for the last half of 1937 to present to the general assembly.

Marion county now is spending $300 a month on approximately 200 cases, the lowest since the worst of the depression in 1935. Commissioners have authorized Mr. Burns to spend only that amount and have limited the type of cases to families having no able bodied, employable men.

He said he is watching with interest any indications of what the legislature might do toward reestablishing the state relief system which collapsed April 15.

He said Marion county will be unable to absorb all the seasonal layoffs from private industry and the WPA dismissals with its present $3,000 a month direct relief revenue.

Unless conditions change in the county before Oct. 1, there will be actual suffering from lack of food and fuel by many families, he said. Spending nothing now for fuel, the county faces the prospect of the large coal costs beginning in October and running for six months. Fuel accounts for one-third of the relief costs in the six cold months, Mr. Burns said.

Program Rained Out, So Girls Improve Camp Site

Rain had its way yesterday and today with any formal program of activities at the Abigail Harding Lewis Girl Scout camp in Vernon Heights, but it couldn't dampen the enthusiasm of some of the campers.

The tennis court on the site was a formidable sight when camp opened Tuesday. Foot-high weeds clogged every inch of the area which was last year's court. Yesterday, when the regular camp program was shelved because of rain, Miss Emily Wolfel and a group of younger girls treked to the camp and pulled weeds.

Late yesterday afternoon the court was a fairly presentable space which, as soon as the ground is rolled, will do adequately for the campers' tennis matches.

The Hopi unit—the ingenious group responsible for the "Hopi Eat" outdoor kitchen—failed to be daunted by yesterday's showers, and turned out almost enmasse to build a tepee. The canvas and oil-cloth wigwam withstood a heavy shower late in the afternoon and appeared to be sturdy enough to do credit to the Hopis for the remainder of the camp period.

Miss Marguerite Hill, camp director, said today that the regular camp periods will be resumed next Tuesday at 9 a. m.—if it doesn't rain.

While activities under the direction of Miss Hill and her assistant, Miss Jean Witt, will be suspended until Tuesday, the girls undoubtedly will be at the camp for a time every day, having the fun of making the camp ship-shape for next week's period, those in charge said today.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

(...1937, Marie de Nervaud)

SYNOPSIS: Kay Cranson of the Lazy Nine ranch surprises a desperate young man preparing a forest fire, and covers him with her gun. She thinks him the firebug the whole country is hunting. The man, Ted Gaynor, begged to get a job fire fighting to buy food for his mother and sister. Kay believes him when he says it is his first attempt to set a fire; she asks him his name and he grates it in accents. They are just starting off when Tom Runyon, the fire patrol, rides up and eyes Ted suspiciously. Spotting the brush pile Runyon strides over to it.

CHAPTER THREE

Fooling the Fire Patrol

Kay turned swiftly to Ted Gaynor.

"Go and get your horse, and get away. Come over to the ranch Nine this evening, or some morning."

"Leave you here alone to face trouble?" Ted Gaynor stubbornly shook his head. "Not me. I'm sticking by."

"You must do as I say! Don't you see you make it harder by staying? I can manage much better without you," Kay urged desperately. "Hurry! Go now, before he gets to the pile, and tells you who you are."

As Ted still hesitated, Kay resorted to pleading. "Please! You said I wouldn't be sorry for what I've done! And if you insist on staying, I will be sorry."

"If you put it that way, I've got to go."

Again Kay was surprised by his slow smile, and the way it lighted up his face, wiping out the dogged look of despair, and making it alive and eager.

"So long."

Before she could answer, he was running noiselessly through the woods, and she watched him disappear down the steep slope, just as a shout from Tom Runyon rang out from the opposite direction.

"What is it," she called, in answer to a second imperative shout. "I'm coming."

Walking swiftly toward him, she summoned all her forces to meet the difficult situation ahead. Unless she kept her wits, she, too, would be involved in the ugly suspicion that that pile of brush was sure to raise.

Intuition as Guide

"Look at this!" Tom Runyon called grimly, as she came in sight. Then, seeing her alone, he added, "Where's that guy that was with you?"

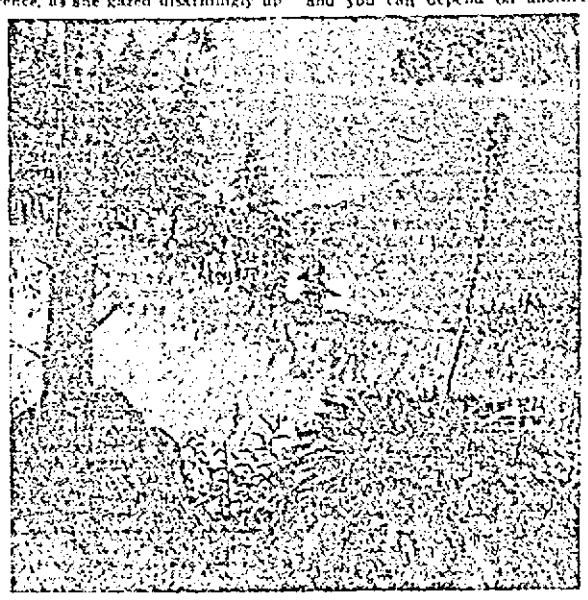
"I sent him on ahead," Kay answered easily, surprised at the calmness of her tone, considering the way her heart was pounding. "What have you found?"

"I've found plenty, and I want to ask that bird some questions." He raised his voice again in a prolonged shout, "Come back here!"

"He won't hear you," Kay broke in. "He's well on his way down the ridge by this time. You mean—" she gave a well feigned start of surprise at the pile of brush Runyon pointed out, "you mean, you think someone was setting a fire here?"

"I don't think; I know." Tom Runyon began kicking the pile of brush to scatter it.

"Well, you don't think I or one of my punchers did it, do you?" Kay's voice held a perfect mixture of amazement and injured innocence, as she gazed disarmingly up at him. "Honestly now, you don't think I look like a firebug, do you?"



Waving her hand, Gay gave Flicker a touch of her heel and was off.

She ended with a light laugh crinkling up her nose so that her eyes almost disappeared under her dark lashes.

"Naturally, I don't think you did it," he answered. "But I'm not so sure about that scrawny guy you had with you."

"I give you my word he'll never set a forest fire." Kay heard her voice give this calm assurance with a certain inner amazement. Why was she so sure about this man whom she had actually caught in the act she was trying to shield him from? There was no time to think it out now, but every instinct cried out in her to protect him. Kay's general hunch in life was to follow her intuition first in an emergency, and reason it out afterwards.

"You can come over to the ranch and see him anytime," she added, easily, "that is, any time after tomorrow. He isn't going back tonight."

"Seeing as you vouch for this puncher of yours, I reckon I'll have to look somewhere else for my firebug." Tom Runyon turned and walked slowly back beside Kay. "I was going to suggest riding back with you," he added ruefully, "but my hunch is to stick around here and wait for whoever set that pile to come and finish off the job."

"That's just what I thought you'd do!" Kay tried to cover the relief in her tone with a flattering note of admiration.

"Sure it's what I'm going to do," Runyon answered with a pleased laugh. "You can trust me to be Johnny-on-the-spot, even in the face of such temptation." He made her a gallant bow.

There's Seth To Persuade

Kay felt a vague sense of withdrawal from his admiring glance, but she smiled back at him as she picked up Flicker's reins and grasped the saddle to mount. Swinging into the saddle before he had a chance to help her, she answered gravely, "I'm mighty glad we have such a dependable new fire patrol."

"You bet you have," Tom Runyon boomed in a gratified voice, "and you can depend on another thing, too. He isn't going to let any grass grow under his feet before he accepts that invitation to come over to the Lazy Nine."

"We'll be glad to see you any time," Kay answered. Waving her hand, she gave Flicker a touch of her heel and was off.

Her thoughts filled with the strange events of the afternoon as she absent-mindedly guided Flicker down the steep trail. She gave him free rein as they reached the range, and he broke into an easy canter.

There was time now to consider more calmly her impulsive action in shielding Ted Gaynor, and plan just how she was going to explain him to Seth Jordan, her foreman. Seth had been a member of the Lazy Nine outfit since before Kay was born, and she could always depend on his devotion and loyalty, but it was going to take some ingenuity to persuade him that they needed a new puncher right now.

A mysterious fire destroys Kay's ranch house, tomorrow.

Madge Plans Secret Trip to Town After Telephone Call From Mary.

FOR ME?" I repeated quaveringly as Nell Gibbs held out the telephone received to me. I was furious at myself for the tremor in my voice, one which invariably comes when I am informed of a long-distance message for me. It is the only phobia I possess, this fear of bad news over a telephone, and the large number of innocuous messages I receive weekly never lessens my uneasiness.

"For you, personally," she said. "I think it's Mary's voice."

She knew, bless her, that this bit of information would quiet my most lively fear that the message might be bad news from the farmhouse. All the rest of our immediate family were with us at the camp. But my father, and Dicky's mother, neither of them in especially good health, were at the farmhouse. I knew only too well that any day might bring me dread news about either of them.

"Thank you," I said fervently and understandingly; then, characteristically, I began to worry about Mary. Had Philip Verrien been making fresh trouble for her?

But her voice, when she spoke to me over the telephone, held no hint of trouble. Instead, it was vibrant with excitement.

"Oh, Auntie Madge!" she said. "I only have a minute. I've slipped out to telephone, and nobody must know. But something so strange has happened—not bad for me—but I'm so thrilled. Listen, darling! Can you come down to the hotel tomorrow?"

"Why, yes, dear," I said, "but I thought you didn't want—"

"I can't explain now. I haven't time. And you haven't come just any time. You must arrange to get here about half past ten, and be ready to leave again about half past eleven. I'll meet you when you come, and explain everything. Don't come to the desk, or ask any questions. Just go straight to the elevator and ask to be taken up to the fifth floor.

"I'll be watching for you from ten fifteen on, to take you where

"Come in here," she said promptly, beckoning me into the deserted dining room. "I'll shut the door on you, and you can thrash things out at your leisure, and undisturbed."

"What a blessed, understanding soul you are!" I exclaimed fervently.

"Oh, I probably am the world's best comprehender," she gibed as she closed the door, and then I inclined myself to consideration of the problem as to how I was to get away from camp the next day without Dicky knowing where I was going. I did not like the secrecy Mary had imposed, but something insistent in her voice had made me feel that she considered the secrecy urgent.

Plans Sudden Trip

I felt that I had proved the truth of the old adage about necessity and invention being mother and daughter when a solution of my problem dawned upon me. I quickly opened the door and beckoned Nell Gibbs into the room.

"If I ask you to do something for me which will be inconvenient for you, will you refuse?" I asked.

"Positively, with the long accent on the 'i' and absolutely," she laughed. Then her tone changed.

"Don't waste my time and yours talking nonsense," she said. "Tell me what you want done, and I'll do it if it's within the bounds of possibility—just as you would answer a call of mine if I were in need of help."

I demurred no longer, but made my request swiftly and tersely.

"Can you take me to Lincoln tomorrow in your car, and then let me have it for an hour or two while you shop, or loaf, or do anything else to pass the waiting time away?"

TELEVISION SHOW PLANNED FOR 1939

LAWRENCE WRITES ON STEEL STRIKE BOARD

gate, to mediate, to take testimony, to get the facts, to make public their findings, and, finally, to act as voluntary arbitrators. This last power, it will be noted, is granted on the assumption that both parties to the dispute might wish to accept arbitration.

This provision means that, if the parties can be brought to an agreement on all points except the one as to who is to guarantee the settlement, it may be that the government-made mediation board itself will act as a guarantor of the agreement and that the employers will then be willing to accept a signed contract.

In other words, the employers have no objection to signed agreements as such if some power can be invoked in the event the contracts are broken. It is possible, of course, for both parties to file their contracts in a federal court for certification and to agree to suit in the event that the contract is violated. This has happened before in giving private contracts all the sanction of law itself.

Wagner Act No Preventative

Then, too, the employers will probably insist, if the contract is signed, that any raising of the demand for a closed shop will automatically terminate the pact or that the raising of the issue will be regarded as a violation of the contract. There are many ways by which the present strike can be brought to a peaceful conclusion, and there is some reason to believe that the labor unions were instrumental in getting the President to appoint the board so as to have some machinery available with which to end the strike. It is the history of all big strikes that, as one side weakens, it seeks intervention from the government or the appointment of some peace-making machinery to afford a camouflaged opportunity for graceful retreat. The same thing happened in the General Motors strike when Governor Murphy was called in by labor. Undoubtedly, General Motors won the strike on the principal issue, and such concessions on the recognition question as it granted were later found to be in conformity with the supreme court decision on the Wagner law.

The interesting thing about the whole affair is the revelation that the Wagner act by itself doesn't prevent serious strikes, as its authors claimed, and that it has merely provoked old issues which require special mediation machinery.

The broad questions developed by the steel strike have really advanced the whole labor problem somewhat toward a solution. The willingness of the independent steel companies to make sacrifices and fight rather than surrender is in contrast with the attitude of other prominent industrial concerns. On the other hand, while the peaceful settlement of various other controversies with the CIO disposed of the subject of recognition, the latest strike has brought into the forefront of attention the matter of union responsibility, the closed shop and the check-off.

If the mediation board can offer a constructive answer to the demand of labor for a monopoly control of the country's workingmen by one big union, it will have spared the President much political embarrassment and the nation billions of dollars in economic losses.

CUT IN WPA WON'T AFFECT THIS COUNTY

Others in District, However, Will Lose Programs as Result of Ruling.

A proposed plan to withdraw the WPA program from all Ohio counties having fewer than 300 WPA workers will not affect Marion county, although three counties in this area stand to lose their programs under the plan, WPA directors in Marion county reported today.

The counties which would be affected are Morrow, Crawford and Wyandot, each having less than 300 WPA workers. At present there are about 600 WPA workers in this county, with little probability that the number will fall below the 300 mark in the next few months, officials said.

The plan was proposed by Dr. Carl Watson, state WPA administrator, who today called commissioners of 43 counties to Columbus to confer with him. The Associated Press reported. Commissioners attending represent 32 counties having less than 300 workers and 11 counties having as many as 400 but which are expected to drop to 300 in the next few months.

Morrow county now has about 100 workers, Wyandot slightly more than 100 and Crawford about 200, officials here reported.

DRIVER ARRESTED IN MT. GILEAD ACCIDENT

Columbus Man Faces Charge in Fatal Crash With Morrow Co. Car

A Columbus man, driver of an automobile which collided with a car driven by E. M. Mathews of Mt. Gilead early last Tuesday in Columbus, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of second-degree manslaughter, according to news reports from Columbus today.

The driver, Richard Allen, 25, was arrested as he was released from University hospital where he had been treated for a broken left arm. The accident caused the death of a Columbus man, serious injury to Dr. Herbert Mathews, son of E. M. Mathews, and injured Mr. and Mrs. Mathews and two Columbus residents.

Columbus police charge Allen with driving on the wrong side of the street when his car collided head-on with the Mathews car. The accident occurred on Nell avenue, opposite Olentangy park. W. A. Young of Columbus, riding with Allen, was killed.

Dr. Mathews was returning home with his parents following his graduation Monday afternoon from Ohio State university with a degree of doctor of medicine. He suffered fractures of both upper and lower jaws, a fractured pelvis bone and head injuries.

STORM KILLS OHIOAN, FLOODS FOUR TOWNS

Woman in Perry County Struck by Bolt While Milking a Cow.

By The Associated Press

SHAWNEE, O., June 18 — An electrical storm and cloudburst killed at least one person and today had caused thousands of dollars damage in southern Perry county.

Lightning killed Mrs. N. C. Street, 56, of Sayre, as she milked a cow.

The storm struck late yesterday afternoon. In a few hours water four feet deep was flowing through the streets of New Straitsville, Corning, Rendeville and Moxahala.

Furnishings were washed from some homes. Streets and highways were damaged badly. One home burned to the ground after being hit by lightning.

Trackage of the New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio railroad was washed out near here, crippling service.

The rise of the flood waters was described graphically by Henry Rocks, New York Central engineer:

"I started through the north end of the half mile long Moxahala tunnel. At the north end there was no water, but when we came out the south end we were met by a wall of water 10 feet deep.

"We stopped quickly and avoided a wreck, but we had a close shave from drowning. The water and rocks damaged our locomotive."

COMPROMISE OKAYED ON RELIEF FINANCING

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 18—The senate's Democratic and Republican leaders backed a compromise today in the heated controversy over local relief contributions.

Sen. Robinson, Democrat of Arkansas, submitted an amendment to the $1,500,000,000 relief bill requiring states and cities—if able—to bear 25 per cent of the cost of non-federal projects. It was suggested originally by Sen. McNary, Republican of Oregon.

The proposal brought a three-way split in the large Democratic majority. Party members who refused to follow Robinson were divided over two alternatives:

1. The original proposal of Sen. Byrnes, Democrat of South Carolina, to shift 40 per cent of the federal relief burden to local communities.

2. Continuance of the discretion now held by President Roosevelt and Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Byrnes said he would vote for Robinson's amendment. Leaders expressed hope the senate would wind up its week-long debate over the relief bill today.

MURDER SUSPECT IS DECLARED SANE

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, June 18—Dr. R. F. Bushong, superintendent of the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, testified for the state today that Joseph Caproni, 21, is sane now and was sane when he shot his former fiancee, Miss Beatrice Roth, 20, to death last Feb. 20.

Caproni is on trial for first degree murder. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. The defense closed its case shortly after the fifth day of the trial started. The jury is expected to receive the case tomorrow or Monday.

Yakimas Cry for Free Hamburgers and Bigger Wage

By The Associated Press

YAKIMA, Wash., June 18—The Yakima Indian tribe went on the warpath today for $2 a day wages, free hamburger three times a day, free tobacco and a 10 per cent "cut" on all souvenir postcard sales during Yakima's pioneer days celebration, July 3-5.

With their war-cry "more wampum" the Indians threatened to stage a sitdown strike at the potlatch instead of parading around and lending color to the celebration at $1.50 per Indian per day.

The Yakimas, once one of Washington's most warlike tribes, staged a sitdown strike during a Seattle potlatch celebration two summers ago because they didn't get fresh hamburger for breakfast.

Ray Clark, in charge of celebration publicity, told the Yakimas they weren't the only color-lending talent available. He said there were 1,000 Pendelton Indians who would be glad to accept the $1.50 wage.

"The trouble with these Yakimas is that most of them have been to college and speak English like a radio announcer," said Clark. "Half of them haven't even got Indian suits.

"Last year three or four of them showed up at our pioneer days celebration in double-breasted, pin-striped suits, with white shoes and straw hats."

MOTHER WHO KILLED HER CHILD FACES PEN

By The Associated Press

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., June 18—Blond Mrs. Helen Tiernan sat in a Suffolk county jail cell today, doomed to spend at least 13 years, and perhaps the rest of her life, in prison for the slaying of her seven-year-old daughter.

She brought her trial to an abrupt end last night when she pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

Under the law, Mrs. Tiernan faces imprisonment from 20 years to life, with the possibility of freedom after 13 years and four months for good behavior.

The plea was entered soon after the state closed its case with the reading of a document in which the 28-year-old defendant was quoted as admitting to police that she deliberately plotted to kill her daughter Helen and her four-year-old son Jimmy because they stood in the way of her contemplated marriage to a restaurant worker.

Mrs. Tiernan was quoted as saying she had taken the two children to a "picnic" in a thicket near Brookhaven, Long Island, last May 15, had cut Helen with scissors, had bit her on the mouth with a hatchet, and then had poured gasoline on her clothing and set fire to it. Also, she was quoted as saying she struck Jimmy with the hatchet.

The children were found the next day, Helen dead, Jimmy severely hurt. He is recovering from his injuries.

NEW TEAM TO GIVE MARIONITE TRYOUT

Shovel A. A. squad for the past three seasons. His tryout may be the solution to Manager Geygan's problem of filling the outfield position.

The remainder of the club which played under the Sandusky banner, is intact, Geygan has been searching for an outfielder for the past several weeks. Robbins, who is rated as one of the heavy sluggers of the M. S. S. team, may continue with the Ohio State league club, depending upon the success of his tryout. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Robbins.

Anxious to get going in their new surroundings, the ball club yesterday went to work putting up their new wooden fence at Lincoln park stadium so that everything will be in readiness for the opening game next Tuesday. After today's game was cancelled the players went to work again today on constructing the fence.

The first actual workout on the Marion diamond is scheduled for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the club prepares its guns for a doubleheader at Tiffin, Sunday.

Meanwhile the Junior Chamber of Commerce members conducting the "booster day" ticket sale drive turned in the first reports of their efforts to raise $2,000 in support of the team. "We have met with unusual enthusiasm and cooperation on all sides," Boyle Morgan, president of the group, told members who met last night for a general distribution of the tickets.

The tickets are being placed on sale in business places throughout the uptown and outlying districts. Selling at 50 cents each the tickets may be used for an admission to the opening game next Tuesday, or for any game for the first two weeks that the team plays in Marion. The opening game with the Findlay Browns will start at 3:30 o'clock. Plans are progressing rapidly for the opening day ceremonies.

DELEGATION VISITS CIVIL WAR VETERAN

Canton Quartet Accompanies Group from G. A. R. Encampment Here.

Francis S. Layton, retiring commander of the Ohio Department of the G. A. R. who was prevented by illness from presiding at the state meeting this week at Columbus, and Mrs. Layton were honored yesterday afternoon by a visit from members of the Betsy Ross quartet of Canton, the official quartet of the state department, and Mrs. Carl Sattler, president of the Mansfield Women's Relief corps, and Mrs. George Pfeiffer, also of Mansfield.

Members of several other affiliated societies who had originally planned to visit Mr. Layton yesterday afternoon before returning to their homes, were prevented from doing so by the belated closing of the last session of the encampment.

Members of the quartet, Mrs. Cora Lambright, Mrs. Mary Bennett, Mrs. Elizabeth Waterson and Mrs. Edna Myers, sang several numbers for Past Commander Layton, and remained for a social hour. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Layton.

Members of Harriet Beecher Stower Tent No. 48, Daughters of the Union Veterans, and Miss Margaret Haberman of the Women's Relief Corps returned last night from the convention. Mrs. Gail Montgomery, a past president of the Daughters, assisted in the installation of Miss Kathryn Heck of Gnadenhutten, as president of the state organization. She also was named on the legislative committee for a term of three years.

Members of the tent attending the encampment were Mrs. H. A. Lusch, president, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. David Schwartz, Mrs. L. H. Flocken, Mrs. H. A. Miller, Mrs. E. L. Price, Mrs. Emma Wedertz and Mrs. Martha Connell.

RETREAT PATH KEPT OPEN ON BASQUES

Basque divisions reached the rearguard positions and occupied them.

The Basques were apparently massing all their forces west of the city to prevent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgents from capturing the dominant heights, cutting the highway to Santander and bottling up the capital.

The shelling of the city from the insurgent gun implacements on the eastern outskirts continued throughout the night, a new defense junta declared, with pursuit planes flying only 200 feet above the streets, machine gunning everything in range.

"One hundred fifty thousand persons have been evacuated from Bilbao to Santander by land and sea within the last 48 hours," read a telegram to the Bayonne delegation. The hunger-stricken city's normal population of 200,000 was said to have been swollen to more than half a million.

One Ship Sunk

"Some of the ships have been stopped by insurgent warships and at least one has been sunk with the loss of many lives," the message said.

The long lines of fleeing refugees, on foot, in automobiles, and in the primitive ox carts the Basques still use, were said to have been attacked by insurgent planes as they streamed out of Bilbao for Santander.

"Pursuit planes, flying low after dropping their bombs, have massacred an immense caravan of women and children with machine guns," the telegram stated. "Tonight (Thursday) in pitch darkness there is a frightful spectacle. Over the sound of machine gun bullets and the crash of bombs come screams of terror and pain from the dying on the roads which are covered with the torn bodies of women and children. Their baggage is scattered by the side of the roads."

FRANCO ASKS FOR BELLIGERENT RIGHTS

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 18—Gen. Francisco Franco, the Spanish insurrent dictator, today asked Great Britain to grant his cause the belligerent rights which would give it a standing under international rules of war.

The rights also would permit him to establish a recognized blockade of government Spain, if his navy was strong enough to do so.

The foreign office said the petition would be considered. Some observers left Franco's so-far successful onslaught on coastal Bilbao gave him a fair chance of getting what he wanted from the British.

Germany, Italy and Portugal have granted Franco belligerent rights. Britain, France and most other nations have not.

Actually, under the dictates of international law, these are the considerations in Francos' requesting of belligerent rights for the insurgents.

SOVIETS CONDEMN MORE "WRECKERS"

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, June 18—An undisclosed number of supposed counter-revolutionary wreckers have been arrested and condemned at Tashkent, in Asiatic Russia, it was disclosed today.

Seven officials of the middle Asian railway shops have been convicted, on charges of sabotage. Reports also referred to others, but were not clear about what had become of them.

CREWS PICK AT ICE FOR BODIES OF 7

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY, June 18 — Men with shovels and picks chopped today at glacial snow and ice they believe separate them by but a few feet from the frozen bodies of seven airplane occupants killed in a mountain crackup last Dec. 15.

Inside the crushed cabin of the Western Air Express liner, at the base of a 1,000-foot cliff in the Wasatch mountains, they whittled at snow that had hardened to coarse, opaque ice.

CIO RALLIES ITS MEN AMID CRIES FOR JOBS

company on certain terms but that the employes insisted that unless the terms were in writing such terms would be subject to conflicting interpretations.

"The management made an offer and you rejected it on the ground it wasn't in writing?" Bailey asked.

"Certainly," Murray answered.

Bailey raised the question of whether the steel workers had a legal majority of workers until an election had been held by the labor relations board.

The possibility that the steel strike, which is costing about $750,000 a day, might spread to the railroads was suggested today in a statement by Alexander F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Asked concerning reports that the trainmen would refuse to handle shipments to or from strike-affected plants, he said:

"I told our fellows at Youngstown, Warren and Canton, O., and in one or two places in Pennsylvania, that they were not required to subject themselves to danger. Under unusual circumstances it is up to the men to decide whether movement of cars is dangerous.

Protection Promised

"I told our men that if the railroads undertook to discipline them or ordered them to work under dangerous conditions we will protect them."

The back-to-work chorus was heard on several sectors.

At Johnstown, a citizens committee, organized to preserve order, adopted a resolution insisting that there be "no compromise with the right to work." Rep. Clare Hoffman, Michigan Republican, said the CIO was organized "for the purpose of wrecking all craft trade unions."

The tone was different at the Chicago mass meeting where Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy of Pennsylvania filled in for John L. Lewis, "strong man" of CIO. Said Kennedy:

"No power on earth can stop industrial unionism (CIO) under the guidance of that great outstanding American (Lewis) who is leading organized labor to the point where it will compel collective bargaining in every industry in this nation."

Van A. Bittner, a CIO organizer, told the Chicago mass meeting:

"We've just begun to fight. They (the steel companies) are going to sign or go on the rocks. We've just got our third team in the game. When we have our first team in there, the steel companies won't even know who has the ball."

The stand of the four strike-involved steel companies—Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Inland Steel—remained unchanged. Inland and Youngstown are not attempting to operate. Republic and Bethlehem (the latter with only the Cambria works at Johnstown affected) are. Inland faces a national labor board hearing next Tuesday on a charge of having failed to bargain with CIO.

In Youngstown, where the back-to-work agitation has been growing for several days, Mayor Evans told a delegation of several hundred women—relatives of steel workers—that "the time has arrived when something should be done."

"If 6,500 or 7,000 men say they want to go back to work," he said, "I am going to see that the laws are enforced when they do go back to work."

TWO INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE MISHAP

Cars driven by Francis W. Bacon of 138 Homer place and C. E. Shroyer of Bellefontaine collided on Center street, near the intersection of Baker street, yesterday afternoon about 4:40 o'clock, according to a police report.

Both cars were damaged considerably and the occupants suffered minor bruises and cuts.

Mrs. Bacon and a two-year-old daughter, Nancy, were riding with Mr. Bacon, while Shroyer was accompanied by Mrs. Shroyer, Mrs. Joseph Miller and Mrs. Martha Herren, all of Bellefontaine. Mrs. Shroyer suffered a cut on the right knee and a bruised elbow. Her three-year-old son, Leonard, suffered cuts about the nose and upper lip.

Damage to Bacon's automobile was estimated at $70. The rear of the car, steering apparatus and body and the front end of the automobile were damaged.

GASTON DOUMERGUE STRICKEN IN FRANCE

Communists into a national government.

He whipped together a "political truce" cabinet and soothed frayed nerves with paternal radio talks to the people and began to clean up the nation's sorely neglected affairs under dictatorial decree law powers granted by parliament.

His new authority was wielded firmly to save the franc-backed franc from depreciation in a world-off-gold by balancing the budget. France's foreign policy, at the same time, was stiffened, with blunt opposition to the rearmament demands of Hitlerite Germany.

His administration was not without its critics. Socialists and Communists accused his government of Fascist tendencies. Yet democracy had no staunchier friend in France than Doumergue and his faith in the destinies of the nation were unshakable.

For a bit more than nine months the affable premier held a tight grip on the government. Then he lost the support of the powerful Radical Socialist party headed by Edouard Herriot which refused to go along with him on proposed constitutional reforms strengthening the powers of the president and premier.

The particular issue which split the cabinet was a project which would have given the executives power to dissolve parliament without the consent of the senate. It was one of several similar proposed amendments to the basic law which would have put France closer in line with the English system. Doumergue argued that their acceptance would stabilize the republic and do away with the frequent changes in government but the cry of "dictator" proved too strong and he resigned on Nov. 8.

There were threats of a recurrence of mob violence as he quit office and in a final appeal to the people he urged formation of a "union of peace." Then, a week later, to avoid the possibility of clashing demonstrations over his departure, he slipped quietly out of Paris at 4 a. m. and went back to his rural home in southern France.

Doumergue died suddenly shortly before 9 a. m., apparently from a heart attack.

He came to Aiguen-Vives Tuesday from his home at Tournefeuille for a weeks' pilgrimage to the ancient middle-class home of his family in this little village of southern France.

For four centuries his parents had tilled their own vineyards. Even in the days when he was directing the destinies of France, the statesman's hobby was the cultivation of grapes.

Upon awakening this morning, his widow said, Doumergue seemed to be feeling well and showed no sign of illness. A little later, however, he suddenly told his wife he felt ill. He fainted and died without regaining consciousness.

KLOEB NOMINATED U. S. JUDGE FOR OHIO

Among 50 Applying for Toledo Job; Had Backing of Sen. Donahey.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 18—President Roosevelt today nominated Rep. Frank Leblond Kloeb to be United States district judge for the northern district of Ohio.

Kloeb, a member of congress since 1932, was selected to succeed Judge George P. Hahn of Toledo, who died more than four months ago.

One of nearly 50 applicants for the post, Kloeb had the indorsement of Sen. Vic Donahey of Huntsville, O., and the implied approval of Sen. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland.

The nomination is subject to confirmation by the senate, but this customarily is a formality.

By choosing to remain in the house of representatives, the 47-year-old lawyer-legislator would have continued to follow the footsteps of his maternal grandfather, member of congress during the Civil war.

"But," said Kloeb, "the duty and desire of every lawyer is to accept the opportunity for service offered by a place on a high bench. And I decided to accept that chance when it came, great as was the attraction of continuing in the congressional seat held by my grandfather."

Among the candidates for the Toledo federal court position was Frank Wiedemann Jr., former Marion county prosecuting attorney and now assistant United States district attorney at Cleveland.

MARION, OHIO

11 from County To Leave Saturday for Boys' State

Will Spend 10 Days at Columbus Citizenship Training Camp Sponsored by Legion.

Eleven boys, representing Marion county, will leave Saturday for Columbus to attend the American Legion Buckeye Boys' state, opening that day at the state fairgrounds for 10 days.

Those attending will be Donald F. Annen of 650 Windsor street, Glen Wintermute of 505 Olney avenue, Thomas Mullett of 774 Mt. Vernon avenue, Theodore Long of Waldo, Bert Pierce and Clair Butz of Caledonia, Gerald Shumaker and Lowell Douce of Martel, Junior Wiley of Meeker, William Johnson of Agosta and Ronald Mellheney of LaRue.

George E. Bailey of 460 North Main street, a senior in Ohio State university's law school, will be a member of the judiciary to prepare cases to be brought into the courts of the Boys' state. He also will act in a supervisory capacity. Bailey served as counsellor last year.

The delegates are being sent by American Legion posts in Marion, Waldo, Caledonia and LaRue, with the cooperation of the Marion Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, the Waldo volture of the 40 et 8 and the Business Men's associations at LaRue and Agosta. E. H. Shade of Girard avenue was chairman of the selection committee for Bird-McGinnis post No. 162.

A total of 700 Ohio honor high school students will make up the Boys' state. They will elect their own governing officers, operate their own government and in many ways carry out the Legion's purpose of instruction in citizenship. The boys are selected on a basis of honor, scholarship, leadership and courage.

The state is divided into four mythical counties and 16 cities, with a governor, mayors, county officials and other governmental officers. A boys' state highway patrol, boy sheriffs and boy policemen enforce laws enacted by a boys' state legislature, boys' city councils, commissioners and other groups. Criminal and civil courts are provided, manned by boys elected to the bench.

Successful candidates for office will be inducted into office by members of the Ohio Supreme court.

ELAINE'S UNDRESSING FILM IRKS THE BARRYMORES

The snap's undone Down it slides Off it goes!

Elaine Barrie, former wife of John Barrymore, is shown in a take-off from her fascinating one-reeler entitled "How to Undress Before Your Husband." Production of the film is reported creating furore among the "Royal Family" of Hollywood Barrymores, who object strenuously to Elaine's being billed as "Elaine Barrymore." The Barrymores are said to be negotiating with producer Dwain Esper in an effort to suppress the reel, which shows how a wife and husband disrobe with grace. The same picture also got Elaine in trouble with the courts.

BASEBALL SPEAKERS AT KIWANIS CLUB

Share Luncheon Program with Columbus Man, Former Resident of Kenton.

Sixty-five Kiwanis club members yesterday heard talks in connection with Marion's team in the Ohio State Baseball league and an address by Trent Sickles of Columbus, secretary of the league of Ohio Sportsmen and former secretary of the Kenton Chamber of Commerce on "A Conservation Program for Ohio." The program was presented at the weekly meeting held at Hotel Marion.

Harry Smith of Columbus, president of the Ohio State league, and R. R. Thompson of Toledo, owner of the Marion team, both spoke briefly. They were introduced by Howie Morgan, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Recreating a previous statement made in another recent talk in the city, President Smith asserted that the club which will play under the Marion banner, "is the best in the circuit."

Pointing to publicity, aroused civic interest and the fact that the baseball team is in itself a new industry for Marion, Smith told his listeners that he felt baseball was more than a sport in its relation to a city.

Sickles, who was introduced by C. A. Klunk, is also manager of the Southern Hotel in Columbus. His talk reviewed past efforts of wild life conservationists in the state and went into the future by calling attention to the many possibilities which await development.

Happy Man Eats What He Wants

First time in years digestion is good, has no gas, acid risings, or sour stomach since VENDOL relieved constipation.

MR. L. G. RANDALL

"For years I've been a victim of constipation which caused me no end of troubles such as indigestion and gastritis, and seemed I couldn't eat a thing without suffering agonies afterwards with a burning sensation in my stomach, acid risings, lump in my throat and awful gas pains and cramps. My nerves were so quivery I seldom got a good night's sleep and all this kept me feeling tired and worn-out all the time with no appetite for my meals.

"I'm happy to say now, since taking Vendol only a few weeks, that it gave relief from the constipation and all the other troubles disappeared, and I'm truly feeling like a different person today, and give all thanks to Vendol," said Mr. L. G. Randall of 659 Tibbbetts Ave., Springfield, Ohio.

VENDOL is made from a dozen Roots and Herbs and several other Valuable Ingredients, so this compound actually accomplishes several things at once. It acts as a carminative, laxative, diuretic to the kidneys and a wonderful appetizer, thus helping cleanse the bowels, bringing forth gas and bloat from the stomach, stimulating the flow of liver bile and arousing kidney activity.

People who were once miserable write and say they feel different all over after getting such an invigorating action from these selected natural roots, herbs and the Alkalines, and advise any one suffering like they did to begin taking Vendol without delay.

But you must not confuse Vendol with any other medicine nor permit some clerk to change your mind and accept some other remedy claimed to be just as good as Vendol. He only wants to make more profit on the other one. Accept nothing in the place of Vendol.

All leading druggists sell Vendol and it is highly recommended here by Heuney & Cooper, Druggists.

Contract for the construction of an improvement on State Route 98 between Waldo and Route 30 east of Marion was awarded to the Dunn & Roller Co. of Carey yesterday by the state highway department. Their bid was $80,175.24, the lowest of five submitted. The department's estimate of the cost was $103,581.47.

Harvey Candel of Bucyrus was the second lowest bidder with $87,701.08.

MADE IN AMERICA'S GREATEST INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY

WAGNER DENOUNCES STEEL COMPANIES

Labels Their Refusal To Sign Pacts Violation of Law Through "Bad Faith."

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 15 — Sen. Robert F. Wagner, Democrat of New York, author of the national labor relations act, declared today refusal of employers to sign collective bargaining agreements may be a violation of the law through "bad faith."

He made the statement in a letter to the New York Times which was published on the editorial page of that newspaper, in it he criticised the "wholly anti-social industrial policy" of employers who refused written contracts, adding:

"Anti-union employers have long refused to enter into written contracts with unions as a token of their adamant determination not to accord to the properly selected representatives of their workers the same dignity and standing which they accord to others with whom they do business."

Sen. Wagner asserted that "this practice must be crushed before we can have industrial peace."

The senator said that while there was no violation of the national labor relations act in failure to reach an agreement, "it is a violation of the act to refuse to try in good faith to reach an agreement through collective bargaining instead of strife."

"Whether the refusal of the employer to enter into and sign a written contract with his workers representatives constitutes a violation of the act therefore depends on the facts of the particular case," Sen. Wagner said. "If he will not sign a contract because no mutually satisfactory agreement can be reached as to its terms, there is no violation.

"But if he announces or shows that he will not sign a written contract even if a collective bargaining agreement should be reached, then he is not trying in good faith to reach an agreement and he is violating the national labor relations act."

History of Thew Family, Pioneer Settlers in Marion County, Written

...e interest in family ...s led to compiling a ... of the Thew family, one ... in Marion county, by ... A Brocklesby of three ... of Caledonia, assisted by Mrs. Ella A. Brocklesby Brown of Cambridge Mass.

The 41 page history, mimeographed and bound in heavy kraft paper, is as inclusive and as accurate as facts available permitted according to the authors.

Miss Brocklesby started tracing the family history two years ago and carried on a voluminous correspondance in this country and abroad to get the material to go her.

The historians were particularly interested in the history of William Thew, native of Alford Lincolnshire, England who died at his home about six miles east of Marion in 1863 at the age of 92. He was the first Thew to come from England. Mr Thew and his wife were childless but they made a home for more than 20 nieces and nephews and are revered for their work in the family history.

Because William Thew was single, it was decided that he should journey to America in 1822 and make a preliminary survey before his brother Richard left the comforts of Alford with his large family. He and a man named Thomas Strawson believed by the family historians to have been his brother-in-law, arrived in New York and after spending several months at work in New Jersey Mr Thew had earned and saved approximately $100. The two set out on foot to see relatives in Richland county, Ohio. Mr Thew was taken ill on the long journey and an attempt was made to rob him. He often told his family later it was the first and only time he ever wished to be back in England. Arrived in Richland county they rested a few days and came on to eastern Marion county where William Thew purchased the land on which he lived and died. The purchase was made the year after Marion county was platted in 1821. Well pleased with the lush land he sent word to his brother Richard to come with his family as soon as possible.

Mr Thew and Mr Strawson started back to New York on foot to meet the immigrant Richard and arrived in the fall of the year. They had to wait until spring to meet the new arrivals and Mr Thew hired out to an old Quaker named Henry Mose in New Jersey, learning all kinds of work. His brother and wife arrived in the spring with their six children and started at once for Plymouth in Richland county, Ohio, where they bought land and settled. While living in Plymouth William Thew married Elizabeth Woodhouse on April 14 1825. She died Aug. 3, 1865.

In the fall of 1825 the newlyweds moved to their new log cabin home, the only dwelling at that time between the Thew land and Marion, seven miles to the west. The Thew cabin frequently offered lodging to Indians. Fifteen years after he first landed in this country Mr Thew returned to his native England for a visit of several months and came back to Marion county with his aged mother and a maiden sister who lived with him until they died.

By 1840 Mr. Thew had cleared most of his land and he decided to build a new home. The structure, built 97 years ago by Obadiah Miller is the same house that stands today, except that it has been raised to a higher foundation, been modernized with the passing of years and a few minor changes have been made in its appearance.

The original house had hand hewn beams and sills of solid walnut. It was a nine-room structure and was one of the most up-to-date in this region when it was erected. It had two large fireplaces which provided all the heat as well as serving as places to prepare the meals, there was a "well" in the kitchen and candles were used for lighting. The fireplaces have been removed, but the general plan of the house remains as it was in 1840. The front of the house as it stands now was the back when it was built, a change necessitated by the building of a new road. Joseph Curtis Brocklesby, father of the compilor of the present family history, now occupies the old home. He is a great-nephew of the pioneer William Thew.

One of the first churches in the section was the Thew log church built in 1824 three miles east of the Thew home, near the Thew cemetery and used for worship for several years.

The drying house where Mrs Thew preserved apples, peaches, cherries and other fruits from the large orchards surrounding the home, is still standing.

William Thew outlived all of his family who came to America at about the time he did and left an estate estimated at $75000. At the age of 91 he wrote his complete will which contained 67 items. A copy of the will was found recently and parts of it of interest are included in the family history.

The history includes the story of the making of a flag by the Thew women the first time Lincoln ran for president. It was a large affair of unbleached muslin and red calico, lettered "Lincoln and Hamilton," painted on three white stripes with black oil paint. William Thew made a flag pole of the tallest tree he would find in the woods, nailed the flag on top of it, set it in front of his home and left it there until the campaign was over, and his candidate had won. Mrs. Brown in Cambridge has the flag in her possession.

The history contains much interesting material on pioneer customs as they were carried on in the Thew family, in addition to the family trees of all of William Thew's seven brothers and sisters and a brief sketch of the history of the family in Marion.

OHIO WOMAN DOCTOR FOE OF STATE MEDICINE PLAN

Declares System Would Cheapen Standards of Profession and That It Failed When Tried Before.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Mass., June 18 — Dr. Lucy Stone Hertzog, describing herself as "a country doctor" from Chardon, O., declared yesterday the issue of whether state medicine should, or should not, become a reality was one of the most important confronting the public.

She made her statement in an interview even as a general business session of the American Institute of Homeopathy adopted a resolution voicing its opposition to state medicine.

The resolution followed on the heels of an address by Dr. A. James Fessler of Trenton, N. J., in which he advocated "organized medicine" to offset any need for government supervision of the profession.

Doctors defined state medicine as any control of medical treatment now under the supervision of doctors themselves.

Organized medicine was described as a system to be administered by the professions to care for all classes of people.

Extending the scope of its resolution, the convention also voted, as its five-day ninety-third annual convention closed, to co-operate with any national organization having for its purpose the furtherance of organized medicine.

Dr. Hertzog, vigorous president-elect of the Ohio Homeopathic State society, said that state medicine would mean a cheapening of the standards of the profession.

It was in effect in 40 countries in the world, she asserted, among them Germany and England, but in no case was it successful.

Brains Behind The Bomber

IF LOUIS HAD BLACKBURN'S PING BRAINS, HE'D BE UNBEATABLE!
JACK IS WORKING ON THE VULNERABLE LOUIS DEFENSE—COACHING JOE TO KEEP HIS HANDS AND SHOULDER HIGH...
Jack BLACKBURN
--MASTER MIND OF THE LOUIS BOARD OF STRATEGY---
HE SEES THAT JOE DOESN'T SHIRK HIS ROADWORK THIS TIME!

"Black Jack" Blackburn taught Joe Louis all the Bomber knows of the manly art of mayhem, but perhaps he can't teach Joe anything more.

Not that the ten Destroyer hasn't a lot to learn, but Louis just seems to be the slow-thinking type who will never develop real ringcraft.

His mentor, Blackburn, was one of the smartest fighters ever to blind a foe with left jabs. Old Jack fought Joe Gans and Sam Langford on even terms, which is proof enough of his flatic greatness. He taught Louis how to punch with almost unparalleled destructiveness, but he hasn't been able to confer his ring brains on this magnificent young animal of the square circle.

Jack is still trying, however. He is now working on the very vulnerable Louis defense, as Joe has proved an easy target for jabs and straight rights in recent scraps. This will never do against Braddock, as those blows happen to be James J.'s pet punches.

Blackburn, who could get a job as Exhibit A in demonstration of the Darwinian theory, is the Einstein of flatic technique, however, and he may be able to get a few of his sage ideas through the thick Louis dome.

On the other hand, Jolting Joseph may not need any thinking apparatus in order to belt out the venerable Braddock. One good belt in the lug can make up for many a mental lapse.

DIGGERS SCHEDULE SUNDAY TILT WITH JOHNSTOWN COMBINE

Teams Met Twice Last Year, Each Won One; Visitors' Record Good.

Plenty of opposition will be offered the Marion Steam Shovel A. A. baseball team when they entertain Johnstown's independent club on the Uncapher avenue diamond, Sunday afternoon. The visitors have turned in six victories in seven games this season and are hoping to put their best line up on the field for the clash with the Diggers.

Last year Johnstown and the M. S. S. team met twice during the season. The Diggers dropped the first game, 2 to 1, but redeemed themselves by scoring a 11 to 6 victory in the second meeting.

Johnstown's record this season gives it decisive wins over the Newark Pure Oils, Richmer Sterling Oils and Carbon Hill team of the Central league, Capital City Monarchs, Bobb Chevrolet, suffering the lone defeat at the hands of the Columbus Coated Fabrics

Best Nines Are In Small Towns, Asserts Wagner

By The Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH — Small towns produce the best sandlot baseball clubs.

That's the opinion of J. Honus Wagner, high commissioner of the semi-pros and coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Honus backs his assertion by pointing to the 1936 national sandlot champions — the Duncan, Okla., team, from a town of 5,200 persons. Then there is the runner-up, Buford, Ga., nine, from a town of 3,300. And the South Dakota state championship team from Howard, population 1,160.

HONUS

"The boys in the small towns have the advantage," Wagner explains. "They take their baseball more seriously. They are more apt to hold daily practice sessions and to have support from home folks than are teams from the cities."

More than 10,000 clubs, Wagner says, will be represented this year in the program of the national Semi-Pro Baseball congress. The teams will compete in state tournament programs, with winners eligible for the regional games to determine national finalists.

TIFFIN, June 18—Mansfield Red Sox, leaders in the Ohio State league, halted a six-game winning streak of the Tiffin Mud Hens, 8 to 3, in the only circuit game played yesterday. The Sandusky Sailors, now established at Marion postponed a contest at Fostoria and the Fremont's scheduled game at Findlay was rained out.

Today the Marion entry in the loop will play its first game since moving to its new location. The club will invade Fostoria, playing its first home game next Tuesday, with Findlay.

In yesterday's game here, Mansfield took the lead in the third inning when second sacker, Gabby Gilbert, hit a home run and scored Stover, Vesek and Patras ahead of him. It was the fourth time this season that Gilbert has pounded out a circuit clout with the bases loaded and the third time against Tiffin.

Barrett, centerfielder, and Lee, first baseman, also hit homers. The game was called in the last of the sixth because of rain. Mansfield will return here today for another clash with the Mudhens. The score by innings of the contest follows:

Mansfield	205 01—8
Tiffin	120 00—3

Schneidmueller and Spartichi; Cronin, Mandreger and Tighe.

DIGGERS REST FOR BIG BOUT

Gate of Near $1,000,000 Expected for Tuesday Match at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 18 — Looking forward to a final "big push" over the week-end, principals and promotors alike marked time today in their preparations for the world's heavyweight title battle Tuesday night between Champion James J. Braddock and Challenger Joe Louis.

Both fighters rested at their respective camps. Braddock, who scaled 198 after a workout yesterday in which he belted his sparmate mercilessly, indicated he would spend the day quietly, even foregoing golf. Louis was expected to take in a motion picture at Kenosha, Wis.

Braddock will box six rounds tomorrow and four or five Sunday in his training wind-up. Louis also will go through drills on both those days before packing to await his shot at the championship.

On the promotional end, practically all arrangements have been completed. The 22-foot ring in which Louis lost to Max Schmeling in New York has been set up directly over second base on the White Sox playing field in Comiskey Park. Workmen have well under way their job of building the 25,000 elevated ringside seats.

Mike Jacobs, associated with Joe Foley in promoting the contest, said about $700,000 was "in the bank" in advance ticket sales and that he still was confident the fight will sell out all 50,000 seats.

Most observers, however, believe the fight will draw between 60,000 and 70,000 fans, with a gate of not more than $500,000.

At his Grand Beach, Mich., camp, Braddock remained calmly confident he will win, remarking that "if he knocks me down I'll get up." Louis looked impressive in his Thursday drill, showing a better defense for right hand punches—the kind Braddock hopes to win with—than at any time since he started boxing. The betting odds remained at 3 to 1 on Louis.

Braddock planned to come to Chicago Monday afternoon. Louis has not yet disclosed when he will make the 65-mile trip from his training headquarters. The weighing in ceremonies will be held Tuesday noon at a downtown hotel. If rain prevents holding the contest, it goes over to Wednesday night.

Jr. Legion Team Schedule Announced

CLUB'S FIRST GAME WITH LIMA RAINED OUT AT KENTON

Three Sessions Arranged, One With New Marion Hardball Team.

Three workout sessions, including a home and home game with Kenton, have been scheduled for Marion American Legion junior baseball team, which was rained out in its first scheduled contest yesterday.

The team will play Kenton here June 29, travel to Kenton July 2, and workout with the Marion Ohio State league team at Lincon park on June 25. Yesterday the club traveled to Kenton for its first game but rain halted the contest at the second batter went to the plate in the first inning.

The opponents for yesterday's scheduled conflict was Lima, who by agreement had made the trip to Kenton so that it would not be necessary for either team to make the full 60-mile trip between Lima and Marion.

The Marion team's line-up as it took the field yesterday was Catagna 2b, Huffman ss, Detwiler 3b, E. Everly 1b, Buckley lf, Lashey cf Wood p, Wintermute c and Williams rf. Other players who made the trip were Lowry p, and the utility men, C. Everly, Annen and Dunzer.

The club was under the direction of Walter E. Hane, acting manager, and John J. Edington, coach. The contest had barely got under way with Lima at bat when a downpour halted activity. One Lima hitter had been retired and the second was at bat when the contest was called.

The playing rosters of the junior league teams are limited to 15 members, in accordance with the rules governing the state and national junior legion programs. The final selection of the first string players, with the certification of their correct ages, is to be made to the district chairman, Fred W. Sampson at Newark, before the deadline next Sunday at midnight.

Because a majority of the team members are 16 years old and will be ineligible under the age limit for participation next year, the sponsors invited younger baseball enthusiasts to workout with the club. The candidates for the club will be split into two teams, working out against each other during the summer practice sessions.

GAMES TOMORROW

NATIONAL LEAGUE—New York at Cincinnati, Philadelphia at Chicago, Brooklyn at Pittsburgh, Boston at St. Louis.

AMERICAN LEAGUE—Cleveland at Boston, Chicago at New York, Detroit at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Washington.

Star Cast of 6 Huskies Will "Wrassle" Monday

What appears to be an all-star cast has been lined up by local promoters for next Monday night's grappling program to be held under the open skies at the arena on Uncapher avenue. All the half dozen huskies who will take part in the trio of bouts have been introduced here before and the finalists were seen in action in the Marion ring last week.

In the final Sergeant Bob Kenaston of Silver City, Ore., will try his hand at taming the one-time Mystery Mike, who turned out to be Les Wolfe of Sherman, Tex. The second bout also over the 60-minute time limit with two falls deciding the winner, brings together a pair of wrestlers who haven't visited here recently.

Unusual Preliminary

Ted Travis, the cool and calculating Californian, and ole Hubka, pride of Dodge, Neb., are paired for the second of the one hour and one-half matches. An unusual preliminary has been arranged with Teddy Watters of Gallup, N. M., and the tough Hoosier, Buck Weaver of Terre Haute, doing the honor of opening the program in a 20-minute scrap.

Marion wrestling promoters are extending a pre-game welcome to the members of the Ohio State league baseball team, which will officially open its schedule here the following afternoon. The team, together with Manager James "Chappie" Geygan, will be guests of honor at the Monday night mat show. The squad and pilot will be introduced from the ringside.

Kenaston and Wolfe, combatants in the final scrap, took part in last week's performance which was moved inside to the Shovel gymnasium when rainy weather prevailed. Kenaston, in his own nonchalant style made short work of Bob Montgomery, the tough egg from Hot Springs, Ark. Using his airplane spin and full heighth body slam, Kenaston took the match in one fall, his opponent being unable to return for the succeeding round.

Wolfe finished on the wrong end of the referee's decision in his melee with Honey Boy Hackney. The fault was not that he was too slow, but that he was overaggressive in seeking advantage of his fast moving opponent. Wolfe's refusal to break clean, led him to be disqualified in the deciding third round after each grappler had taken a fall.

Once a Mystery

Wolfe first made his appearance in the Marion ring under the veil of a scarlet mask, being billed as Mystery Mike. Two weeks ago Honey Boy Hackney became the first to penetrate his identity by tearing away the mask, at the expense of losing the scrap. Hackney wanted another try at Wolfe and got his opportunity last week. Since losing the mask, Wolfe has made but one appearance here, and fans have come to dislike him no small amount.

For Ted Travis it will be the first visit to Marion in slightly more than three years. Sporting a full neck that measures 22 inches, the Californian is often referred to as the John L. Sullivan of the mat. His wide V-shaped shoulders carry tremendous power and he should prove a tough opponent for the veteran Joe Hubka.

Hubka, a nephew of the once-famous Joe Stecher, has, like his uncle, become a scissor expert. Barrel-chested and blonde, Hubka can handle himself in rough and fast company, relying largely on his telling scissor holds to keep out in front. Both Watters and Weaver, matched for the openers, are well known here. Weaver holds the Ohio middleweight title, having won it in a tournament here several years back.

M.S.S. DEFIANCE AND KEYTOWN TRIUMPH

will probably meet to play a series of postponed games the preceding night.

In last night's games Defiance had the widest margin of victory, in its 15 to 2, win over Osgood. The Defiance sluggers pounded out 15 hits and scored in every inning except the third. Osgood's club was held to four hits off the pitching of Millisor. It took but six bingles for the Keytown Campers to run up their 11 to 0 score against the Omar Bakers. The Bakers collected but three hits off Schwaderer and Weiss, Keytown hurlers.

The M. S. S. club was the only outfit of the eight teams which turned in an errorless game. The Diggers nicked the Huber pitcher, Walters, for eight hits, scoring six run, while Huber's batters could connect for only three safeties. After battling on even terms through the first four innings, Fairfield stepped out to win over Excavator by a four-run margin. Both teams scored a pair of runs in the second, and Fairfield took the winning lead in the fifth with another pair of tallies.

The score by innings of the games follows:

Defiance	320	121	4	13	15	x
Osgood	000	011	0	2	4	x

Millisor and Richards; Huntsman, Gibson, Gilmore and Curren.

RED BIRDS LOOM AS THREAT IN LEAGUE

Columbus Team No Longer Taken Lightly; New Fielders Star.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 18—Shagging a few American association flies after an open date around the circuit...

The champion Milwaukee Brewers haven't looked like repeaters recently but apparently the home town fans still think their team is far from "out". To date, more than 100,000 fans have watched the Brewers perform this season.

The Columbus Red Birds, regarded in some sectors as a troupe of tumbling clowns when the season opened, no longer are being taken lightly. The team is on its toes from the first pitch and while it may do some things wrong the club is fighting for everything it can get... The Birds have two great young outfielders in Johnny Rizzo and Enos Slaughter. They murder the ball, are good fly hawks, are speedy on the sacks and can throw...

The Red Birds have three likely looking pitchers in Max Macon, Max Lanier and Bill McGee.

Spencer Harris of Minneapolis is playing his 16th year of professional baseball, and still is a handy man to have around, as the rest of the Millers and Mike Kelley and Donie Bush realize. He's 37 and rounding out his 11th season with the Kels and still is playing the steady kind of baseball that has been typical of his long stay in a Miller uniform... He's hitting well above .300 now and getting hits when they mean runs... During his 10 years with the team he compiled an average at the plate of better than .330.

Minneapolis is setting the pace today, with Toledo close up, followed by Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Columbus, Louisville, St. Paul and Kansas City in order.

Within an automobile only 28 feet long specially constructed for a customer the builders installed equipment for serving food and beverages, writing, smoking, dressing and shaving, a radio set, barometer, clock, compass and altimeter.

TODAY'S STAR IN SOFTBALL

The Marion Steam Shovel team was the only one of eight clubs taking part in the Industrial league softball games last night, which turned in a perfect fielding record. In the M. S. S. aggregations, 6 to 3, win over Huber, the Diggers played errorless ball.

INDIANS AT BOSTON AFTER DROPPING 3; REDS BOOK GIANTS

Tribe Now Near Bottom of First Division After Yankee Series.

BY SID FEDER

There's no place like home, sweet home for those Indians from Cleveland.

Put them in their own ballwick, and they look like money in the bank. Send them on the road, and they flounder around like a basket-full of freshly caught fish.

For three years, they've had about the strongest club, on paper, in the American league. Yet, that habit of leaving their winning ways in Cleveland has shut them out of the pennant chase each time. Last year, it even cost them a first division berth.

From what's been going on so far this season, it appears they haven't changed a bit. Only last week, they concluded a fairly successful home stand with 11 victories against eight defeats. At one time during the Cleveland stay, they were as high as second place.

The schedule forced them to pack up and take to the road again. Unfortunately, their first stop in the east was at Yankee Stadium. They landed in New York Tuesday and since then dropped three straight to the Yankees, losing a daffy 8-7 affair yesterday in which the Yankee homer-hitters came from behind with a five-run splurge in the seventh.

The Boston Red Sox apparently have hit their stride at last. Opening their current Boston stand against the supposedly surging White Sox, they proceeded to take the Chicagoans apart in four straight games.

Young Jack Wilson and old Rube Walberg turned in a pair of tight pitching performances yesterday to give the Sox both ends of the Bunker Hill day doubleheader, 5-2 and 3-2, the latter going 10 innings. The twin win not only boosted the Sox over the .500 mark for the first time since June 8, but pulled them up to within a game of the bottom of the first division, now occupied by the Indians.

Only one other game in the big leagues got by old man weather on yesterday's program, as the rest of the American league and all but a single National league contest was rained out.

Dizzy Dean, admittedly not feeling his best, was belted over by the Phillies' power hitters in the lone National league contest and the Cardinals went down 13-7. Dean gave up 11 hits in the seven innings he worked, as the Phils took their first triumph over the Gas House Gang this season.

Johnny Allen was slated to oppose Fritz Ostermueller or Archie McKain on the mound for the Indians today at Boston.

The Indians, a serious threat for first place when the Yankee Stadium series started, today were only a game ahead of the fifth-place Boston club.

Cleveland unleased its first loud attack in New York this year, including home runs by Earl Averill and Hal Trosky, but ineffective pitching gave them their fifth straight loss in the stadium.

The New York Giants invaded the Cincinnati Reds' home lair today with the great Carl Hubbell scheduled to face the Cincinnati batsmen. Lefty Lee Grissom was assigned Red mound duty by Manager Dressen.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

INDIANAPOLIS — Barney Ross, 143, Chicago, world welterweight champion, knocked out Chuck Woods 148, Detroit, (4).

PORTLAND, Me.—Dave Castilloux, 128½, Winslow, won newspaper decision over Eddie Alack, 132, New York, (10).

SNATCHES OF SPORT

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

GRAND BEACH, Mich., June 18—Ray Arcel and Whitey Bimstein, two crack New York fight trainers, blew in today to help Doc Robb handle Jimmy Braddock against Joe Louis.... Arcel and Bimstein used to be partners.... They fell out and haven't spoken for years.... But they'll work together like brothers in Braddock's corner Tuesday night.... That's the fight racket for you.

* * *

It is probable that Jimmy Braddock, who has earned less than any champion in recent years, will draw down the largest purse since the days of Gene Tunney for his fight with Louis.... Braddock is flat broke, but he won't be after Tuesday night.... And if he licks the Bomber and goes on to fight Max Schmeling, win, lose or draw he can quit the ring almost a millionaire.... Mike Jacobs still does a good job of hollering for a million dollar gate, but chances are Mike would settle right now for around $500,000.

Dick Cullum, Minneapolis Journal sports writer is here covering Braddock.... He says Minnesota will have fewer smart boys on the squad next season and will go in more for the rough and tumble brand of football.... A sign in the arena where Braddock trains reads: 'Positively No Smoking".... The only guy violating the rule yesterday was Joe Gould who only happens to be the champion's manager and who had the sign posted.

Business Session, Party, End Mail Clerks' Meeting

Convention Business Keeps Visitors Busy Until 9 p. m.; Cards, Moving Pictures End Program.

The biennial convention of the Fifth division of the Railway Mail association was brought to an end last night after a two-day program of business and entertainment. The bulk of the approximately 300 visitors remained in Marion until today because of the lateness of the adjournment of the business session at Eagles' hall.

The business was climaxed by a card party, refreshments and a special moving picture, "The Fast Mail," presented by the auxiliary at Hotel Harding last night.

The business convention got under way at shortly after 2 a. m. and following appointment of committees recessed until 2 p. m. for the report of the committees and the formal action by the delegates. From 2 p. m. until almost 3 o'clock, the delegates remained in session. B. G. Burris of Cincinnati, division president, said it was the shortest convention in the division's history.

Recognize Economy Wave

The convention was unable this time to propose many of the changes in postal department policy favored by the clerks because of the current wave of economy now sweeping Washington, Mr. Burris said. It had been originally planned to ask for a reduction of the optional retirement age for clerks from 60 to 58, a change which would cause additional expenditures by the government for pensions. No action was taken.

The next convention city will be selected in January of 1939 by the executive committee.

Principal resolutions adopted by the delegates included:

1. Indorsement of a plan of widows' annuities for members. The plan gives widows half of the annuity after the death of the husband and in case the wife dies first, then the husband receives only half his normal annuity. The plan is optional with members.

2. Indorsement of a bill now in congress to provide a system of longevity pay for railway mail clerks. It will provide an addition of $100 a year at the close of the first 15 years of service and $100 additional for each five-year period thereafter to 30 years' service.

3. Indorsement of a pending congressional bill to grant substitute clerks the same benefits of annual leave and sick leave now granted only to regular clerks.

4. Requesting that clerks be supplied with shatter-proof goggles for protection from cinders.

5. Asking for a general boost of 10 merit points on grades of clerks in their periodic examinations. Merit points earned thus can be used to cancel demerits piled up during a year as a result of failure to deliver mail, to pick it up or other lapses of duty.

6. Asking railroads to illuminate distinctively points of pick-up for mail and to post public warnings. LaRue has such a system of illumination.

The above resolutions will be submitted to the national convention at Philadelphia on October 18.

Other Resolutions

The convention also passed several resolutions in appreciation of the cooperation of various groups and individuals during the convention: the Marion branch and auxiliary, Mayor Smith, the Chamber of Commerce, the National City Bank & Trust Co. for receiving ballots, the Harding Hotel, the Marion Auto club and The Star.

The executive committee elected for the next two years includes Jacob Kruckman of Columbus, Ray English of Decatur, Ill., W. J. Warner of Toledo, Mr. Burris, J. M. Bosler, secretary, and B. O. Kinnamon, vice president, also serve on the committee. Mr. Warner is the only new member.

The proceedings of the convention will appear in full in the July issue of the Railway Post Office, official association magazine.

As the delegates reconvened yesterday afternoon, Mr. Burris gave his convention address. He commented on the progress made since the last convention, noting especially the establishment of the five-day week.

He urged the delegates to take some action regarding substituting round trips for hours as a base for calculating a year of work. Some advances have been made in this by the government, but still the physical welfare of the clerks is not protected, he said. Greater speeds of trains and the resultant burden on the clerks creates a danger of over-exertion due to heavy assignments, he explained. He also urged more clerks be employed to relieve those now under unusually large assignments.

The Fifth division has 11 branches, including one in Marion, and embraces four states, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois. It is the second largest of the 15 in the country, having 2,200 members, a tenth of the total membership.

Arrangements for the convention were in charge of J. C. Luvisi of 200 Hane avenue, president of the Marion branch.

Boosts Delaware Girls' School as Place To Get Wife

By The Associated Press

DELAWARE, O., June 18—Young men seeking life-time partners might well look to the Girls' Industrial school near here.

Mrs. Rose Beatty, superintendent of the state institution, said today it was "a fine place to get a wife," and added:

"We have as pretty girls as I've seen anywhere."

More important, she said, her girls are trained to be homemakers.

Mrs. Beatty, who is a sort of foster mother to 480 girls between the ages of 10 and 21 placed in her keeping because of incorrigibility, said her remarks were prompted by a report that the Oklahoma Training School for Girls would open a "dating bureau" for inmates with exceptional records.

"Why, we have been doing almost that for years," Mrs. Beatty asserted.

While the Ohio school has no dating bureau, it permits inmates who are engaged or are "terribly in love" to have dates under proper supervision. Their boy friends, however, must receive the approval of the probate court which sentenced the girl.

Many girls have been married while in the industrial school and have done very well.

Mrs. Beatty said that one girl married a high school teacher with a master's degree from a university, and that others had become the wives of "fine business men" and took prominent places in their communities.

"Oh, I'm quite a match-maker," the superintendent laughed. "I frequently have gone with them to get their licenses."

PATTERN 4441

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, June 19

A DAY of high adventure and startling events is presaged from the powerful influence of major planets, operating with impelling force to precipitate amazing and quite unforeseen occurrences. These abupt visitations have to do with romance in the private life or a surprising announcement in the realm of scientific achievement or discovery, producing a revolutionary influence on the life.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves plunged into a year of startling visitations, with both adventure and romance causing a revolutionary change in the life and its destinies. Sensational love affairs, or conspicuous achievements or discoveries in the realm of the scientific or connected with nature's finer forces may be expected.

A child born on this day may have outstanding talents of a romantic, adventurous, scientific nature, at once original and startling as well as subtle, shrewd and conniving. It will doubtless have a sensational or conspicuous career in whatever direction its nativity emphasizes.

BIG TOE BETRAYS THIEF

When the police of Hermanus, South Africa, inspected the trail of a barefoot burglar, who had stolen $100, the Sherlock Holmes instinct told them that capture should be easy. One of the big toes was peculiarly formed. All the well known jail characters passed inspection, but the trail finally led to N. Cupido, an amateur burglar, who was sentenced to four months' hard labor.

PRIDE SPURNS RELIEF OFFER

Foe of Charity Lives With Family in Back Seat of Unlicensed Auto.

By United Press

NUTLEY, N. J., June 18—James Pride, an anti-charity man from the wide open spaces, parked his dilapidated automobile on a vacant lot here last night and announced that a man's home was his castle—even if it was the back seat of an automobile.

With him was Mrs. Pride—Zelma, 27—and their four-month-old baby, Dorothy; they all lived, he explained, in the back seat.

His only claim to fame was the fact that Jack Dempsey used to pick strawberries on his father-in-law's farm in Oren, Utah. His assets were 15 cents, a bottle of milk and the car, which cost $35.

The car had no license plates, and the milk was sour, but James Pride said he'd get along somehow.

"All I want is to be left alone," he said.

The police called on Mr. Pride and his family and said the overseer of the poor would take care of him until he got on his feet.

"I'm already on my feet," said Mr. Pride, standing on them. "I don't want the overseer of the poor to take care of me. All I need is a job to buy some gasoline and food, and license plates, and then we'll move on."

The cops shook their heads; nothing like that had ever happened before in Nutley, so they called in the overseer of the poor, John Forrester.

"We'll get you on relief," said Forrester.

"Nothing doing," said Mr. Pride.

The overseer of the poor finally said they had a room for the Prides and would appreciate it very much if they would stay there until he got a job, because it looked bad for Nutley for them to be living in the back seat of a car. So, Mr. Pride swallowed his pride and said if they put it that way he would if they would find him a job.

Mayor Smith Speaker at Cleveland G.O.P. Meeting

Appears on Program With Taft, Turner, Bettman and Judge Day; Urges Money Plank.

Mayor Frederick C. Smith was one of the speakers at a state Republican conference in Cleveland yesterday sponsored by the Ohio Federation of Republican clubs.

Mayor Smith urged the party to adopt a "hard money" plank in its next platform. He remained in Cleveland this morning for a session of the resolution committee which was expected to consider his recommendation.

Former Attorney General Edward C. Turner urged compulsory arbitration of labor disputes and legislation to make strikes and lockouts illegal, in one of the talks given at the conference, The Associated Press reported.

"No man or set of men," Turner declared, "whether it be employes, employers or outsiders, has the right to interfere with the public's undoubted right to a flow of commerce and the furnishing of the necessities and conveniences of life.

"Under present-day industry," he added, "I deny the right of the employe to strike or the right of the employer to put into effect a lockout."

Other Speakers

Among other speakers were three regarded as potential candidates for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator in 1938: former State Senator Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, Supreme Court Judge Arthur H. Day of Cleveland and former Attorney General Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati, who ran for the senate in 1932.

Taft, son of the late President William Howard Taft, said he intended to announce his candidacy soon.

"The fundamental issue in the next election," he said "will be constructive reform, as opposed to complete destruction of the American system of government."

Bettman remarked "the Republican party can help America most by standing squarely against governmental pampering which destroys our people's self-reliance."

Mayor Smith, in urging the hard money plank for the party's next platform, asserted he believes such a stand would strengthen the party's stand and serve to ward off the dictatorship toward which he said the present administration is guiding the nation.

Mayor Smith opened his address with an attack on the Democratic administration and asserted the people and the Republicans have adopted an ostrich-like attitude toward the subservience of congress and the courts to the executive branch.

Launching into the subject of the gold standard, the mayor asked "What is dictatorship? It is commonly assumed to be usurpation of the legislative and judicial powers by the executive branch of the government...There is something deeper than that. The foundation and essence of dictatorship is political control of credit and political control of the exchange value of money."

"The dollar will buy exactly what the politicians in Washington say it will. Congress passed a law making it worth only 59 cents. Property rights of the social or worker group are gone. No persons belonging to this class can possibly be secure in the holding and use of his property when there is political control of his credit and the exchange value of his money."

He declared that gold money—hard money—is the laborer's and farmer's greatest protection to keep what he makes, in view of its stability of purchasing power.

By taking gold out of circulation and by inflating the dollar, the government has been able to find more funds to buy votes, he declared.

In closing he said: "Let us take our stand. Let us promptly adopt the value money plank as the basis of our platform. Let us, as quickly as possible, dig up the mammoth pile of gold buried in the caves of Kentucky, recoin it, and give it back to the poor to be used as their standard for measuring the value of their labor."

Accompanying Mayor Smith last night were Millard Hunt, City Service Director John V. Ruth and City Clerk Harry Brookshire. They returned last night.

U. S. WOULD BAR BIGGER SEA GUN

Ready To Meet Japanese Threat in Building of Two Warships.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 18—The United States undertook today to forestall any international race to increase the size of naval guns.

State department officials disclosed notes have been dispatched to Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy asking if each would consent to limit their sea weapons to 14-inch caliber.

President Roosevelt was understood to have ordered this move in an effort to persuade Japan to reconsider its previous refusal to participate in an international agreement of that character. The other three nations have expressed willingness to confine their battleship armament to 14-inch guns.

The U. S. navy must decide soon whether it will mount 14 or 16-inch guns on two new battleships to be laid down this year. Officers acknowledged unless Japan reverses its position, the navy will adopt the larger weapon.

(A Tokyo dispatch, quoting an authoritative person, said Japan had decided to reject President Roosevelt's proposal).

Private bids were opened at the navy department yesterday for the construction of one of the two new American dreadnaughts.

The proposals from three companies ranged from a qualified bid of $16,212,500 to a fixed price of $59,900,000 for hull and machinery alone. To this must be added approximately $20,000,000 for guns and armour, to be supplied by the government.

Secretary Swanson indicated he was disappointed with the bids. He said estimates of navy yards for contruction of the second ship were considerably lower.
